Thanks to your support, Louise faces her future with hope...

Louise just finished nursing her daughter when she noticed a lump on her breast. Suspecting that it was a bout of mastitis, common with breastfeeding, Louise waited a couple of days to see if any more symptoms arose. When there was no change, she promptly booked an appointment with her doctor.

Following her intuition and advocating for three separate rounds of tests, Louise was diagnosed with Triple-Negative Breast Cancer (TNBC).

"The experience of being diagnosed with breast cancer was very intense, my first thought was, 'how can this happen, I am so young and I have no family history'. I worried about my daughter. It was a very emotional time coming to terms with the reality of being a mother and going through treatment for cancer", said Louise.

Aged 34, Louise underwent surgery for a mastectomy followed by 16 rounds of intensive chemotherapy. To keep her positive mindset, Louise has been writing poetry and journaling throughout her journey.

Louise reflects; "I have maintained my positivity, but I have also felt that aching, that loss of my life and the inability to do things I want."

Amidst the tough changes of cancer treatment, Louise embraces resilience as she shaves her hair.

Louise finds strength in precious moments with her daughter.

Research is so valuable, it's a perspective I've had even before I was diagnosed with cancer. With TNBC being rarer and more aggressive, it is so important that we support research so we can access new information and more treatment options.

Anyone out there who is thinking of buying a ticket, thank you. I feel emotional about it, because I know that your support of research changes lives. It has changed my life."

Every Cars for Cancer ticket that you buy is supporting cancer research at Mater and helps women like Louise, by enabling them to access world-leading treatment options in their fight with cancer. Thank you for your support.
